Canton Public School District announces new interim superintendent

Special to The Canton News

Canton Public School District (CPSD) Superintendent Gary Hannah has

Dwight J. Luckett Sr.

Special to The Canton News

officially announced his resignation, accepting a new position as Chief of Staff for Memphis-Shelby County Schools.

In a message to the CPSD community, Hannah said the decision came after “careful consideration and prayer” and cited the opportunity to be closer to home and spend more time with family.

“As I reflect on my tenure as superintendent of Canton Public Schools, I find myself filled with a mixture of gratitude and nostalgia,” Hannah wrote. “My time here has come to a heartfelt conclusion, and I want to take a moment to express how deeply I appreciate each one of you.”

Hannah’s farewell letter highlighted his appreciation for the CPSD staff, board members and the greater Canton community. He acknowledged the district’s collective efforts in supporting scholars and fostering a nurturing educational environment.

“The memories we’ve created together - filled with triumphs and challenges - will forever hold a special place in my heart,” he wrote.

“I will genuinely miss the camaraderie, the collaborations and the laughter we’ve shared.”

Hannah extended his gratitude to the CPSD Board of Trustees, stakeholders and families for their continued support during his tenure.

There was no immediate announcement regarding interim leadership or the process for selecting a new superintendent. The Canton Public School District has named veteran educator and administrator Dwight J. Luckett Sr., Ed.S., as its interim superintendent, marking his second appointment to the position.

Luckett brings more than three decades of experience in public education, including previously serving as the district’s full-time superintendent from 2006 to 2014 and as interim superintendent in 2018. Known for his transformative leadership, he helped raise student achievement, increase graduation rates, and improve the district’s academic standing during his earlier tenure.

“We are excited to welcome Mr. Luckett back to the Canton Public School District,” the district said in a statement. “His proven track record and commitment to student success make him the ideal leader to guide us through this period of transition.”

Under his previous leadership, Luckett oversaw the construction of two new schools and a state-of-the-art football stadium—all without the need for a bond referendum. He also helped establish pre-kindergarten classes and implemented a five-year strategic plan for the district.

Beyond Canton, Luckett has served in multiple interim leadership roles, including interim superintendent for Kosciusko Public School District and interim principal of Nichols Middle School. Earlier in his career, he held key roles such as principal of East Side High School in Cleveland and assistant principal at Velma Jackson High School.

Luckett holds a bachelor’s degree from St. Edward’s University and both a master’s and specialist degree in educational leadership from Delta State University. He is also a past president of the Mississippi Association of School Superintendents and currently serves on the Madison County Economic Development Authority board, where he was chairman in 2018.

District officials said they are confident Luckett’s return will bring stability, continuity, and renewed momentum for students, educators, and families alike.

“We look forward to working together as we continue elevating minds and empowering possibilities,” the statement read.

Canton Board of Aldermen covers operations, safety and budget in July meetings

Special to The Canton News

The City of Canton Board of Aldermen and Alderwomen met several times in July to address citywide priorities, ranging from infrastructure and public safety to personnel matters and financial approvals.

The July 1 regular meeting opened with presentations from Jackie Ard, Courtney Rainey, Stan Beasley, Neel Shaffer and Waggoner Engineering. Department heads, including Police Chief Otha Brown, Fire Chief Ken-na Pierce and Public Works Director Tony Coffey, provided updates on ongoing operations. During the meeting, the Board authorized the mayor or his designee to respond to the Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS), selecting the Sponsorship Agreement as the City’s preferred funding method for watershed plan development under the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Operations Program.

The Board also entered executive session to discuss two personnel matters related to job performance or mental health, one under supervision and finance, and the other in building and zoning.

Later that same day, the Board held a special-called meeting. Among the actions taken was the approval of a $65.71 payment due to a Fuelman card malfunction and authorization to purchase ten Mobile Field Interview (MIFI) units for the Police Department at a monthly cost of $369.90. The Board passed a resolution to change authorized signatories on City accounts and made an appointment for Mayor Pro-Tempore. They also approved municipal bond renewals for City officials and employees, authorized the cleaning and marking of Nissan City vehicles, and designated a point of contact for audit coordination with the Department of Revenue and the Mississippi State Auditor’s Office. Additional business included approving a change of locks and codes for City Hall and the Mayor’s office, granting access to specific City officials. The Board also considered the installation of speed bumps on Martin Luther King Drive and Adeline Street, and approved minutes from two previous meetings held on June 17 and June 23.

Canton native reflects on personal growth at Hinds S.O.A.R. Camp

Special to The Canton News

When Ezekiel Harris of Canton stepped onto the Utica Campus of Hinds Community College, he described himself as “sheltered.” But through the support of faculty, staff and peers, Harris said he found the confidence to lead — and to shine.

Harris, a 2023 graduate of Hinds with an associate degree in mass communications, returned to the Utica campus this summer to speak to high school students attending the inaugural Thurgood Marshall College Fund S.O.A.R. (Seeking, Observing and Achieving Results) Summer Camp. During a panel discussion on July 16, Harris reflected on how the college helped him grow into a confident student leader.

“The faculty and staff helped. They are not just teachers and administrators,” Harris told the audience of about fifty campers. “You’ve got mom and dad and cousins — it’s a family. It shaped me.”

He credited his transformation to the strong sense of community in the campus residence halls and the encouragement he received to get involved. Harris was voted both Mr. Freshman and Mr. Utica during his time at Hinds.

“We motivate each other,” Harris

Scholar Program, a weeklong residential camp on the HBCU campus. said of campus life. “Living in the residence halls, we’re all we’ve got, so we supported each other.”

The S.O.A.R. Summer Camp was held July 13-18 and gave approximately one hundred rising high school seniors a chance to experience life on a Historically Black College or University (HBCU) campus. The program included exposure to academic programs, career paths, financial aid guidance and panel discussions with Hinds alumni like Harris.

Other panelists included Jaylan Blount of Jackson, who is now studying psychology at the University of Southern Mississippi, and Zoe Griffin of Raymond, currently pursuing an early childhood education degree at Alcorn State University.

The event was hosted at Hinds’ Utica Campus, a site with deep historical roots as an HBCU and a longstanding commitment to empowering students academically and personally.

Harris’ journey from a quiet freshman to a campus leader continues to inspire students from Canton and beyond.

“I love to be the center of attention now,” he said with a laugh, crediting his growth to the opportunities and support he found at Hinds.

Five tips to get you back to school ready

By Courtney Warren

Summer flew by. I know that's cliché and we always say it, but here we are again preparing to return to school. Your own children or grandchildren might already be back in their classrooms! However, it's never too late to do these simple tasks to ensure your school year is off to a great start.

1. Clean the backpacks.

Hunt down and clean those backpacks! I am not a fan of buying a new backpack every year, so I try to grab a high quality LL Bean backpack when they go on sale. You can get them embroidered with your child's name, and they last for years to come. I hunt it down, clean it out, and send it through the washer before letting it air dry in the sun. You can do the same with the lunchboxes...barring that your child didn't leave it in the garage full of last year's lunch.

2. Set school year expectations.

If you're like me and allowed your child to be a summer goblin with unlimited screens, indoor/outdoor access, and all the snacks, it's time to reign it back in! Sit your child down, and have an age appropriate discussion about screen times, bed times, and morning prep, so you are all on the same page and ready to rock the new school year. For us, that conversation includes getting a bedtime routine established, making a fresh chore list, and having a discussion about no screen time during the school week. Expect tears! They'll be just fine.

3. Find the shoes.

Where are they? Are they clean? Do they still fit? Do we need to make a last minute order? What about the socks? Same questions. Do they match? Find them, and place them by the door.

4. Lunches.

School lunch is probably my downfall. It's so easy to toss a bajillion prepackaged items into her lunchbox and call it a day, but I know I can do better. Have a conversation about what school lunches will look like. What about after school snacks? Set up a place for those snacks and items, so they are easy to find and you're not frantically searching the kitchen for some stale pretzels and Christmas napkins, praying the elementary teachers don't see it and think you've lost your mind. Your child eats school lunch? Perfect! Find that water bottle, and have it ready to go for the school day.

5. Take a breath.

Life is about to get busy again! The school year is a brand new chapter. Whether your child loves school or hates it, you can set the tone for their school day and school year. Remember, it's never too late to start the morning over if someone wakes up grouchy. It's always a good day to have a good day.

Robbie Webb to be inducted into Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame

Special to The Canton News

Robbie Webb, the longtime head golf coach at Canton Academy and a beloved figure in the Canton community, will be posthumously inducted into the Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame this week-end as part of the class of 2025.

Webb, widely known among Mississippi golfers as the “Godfather of Mississippi Golf,” enjoyed a distinguished career spanning nearly three decades coaching the Panthers at Canton Academy. Under his leadership, the team claimed multiple back-to-back state championships, and individual golfers broke several school records and earned college scholarships.

Beyond his work at Canton Academy, Webb served as the head golf professional at both Canton Country Club and Deerfield Country Club. He also coached at Madison-Ridgeland Academy and Canton High School, mentoring hundreds of junior players who would go on to achieve success in collegiate and amateur golf.

Robbie Webb’s legacy is further defined by numerous honors during his lifetime. He was a multiple-time recipient of the PGA Gulf States Professional of the Year award and Gulf States PGA Junior Golf Leader Award. Webb was inducted into the Gulf States PGA Hall of Fame in 1998 and is celebrated by the Mississippi

Golf Association through the annual “Robbie Webb Award,” created in 2000 in his honor.

Officials at Canton Academy voiced pride in his inclusion among the 2025 inductees.

Dameon Brown named head football coach at Canton High

Special to The Canton News

Canton High School has announced the hiring of Dameon Brown as its new head football coach for the 2025–2026 school year, bringing a new era of discipline and determination to a team that narrowly missed a deeper playoff run last season.

Brown, a Canton native, returns home after serving five years as head coach at Callaway High School and three years as an assistant coach at Callaway. His coaching career also includes two years as head coach at Powell Middle School.

“Canton Public School District is proud to announce Mr. Dameon Brown as its new Canton High School Head Football Coach,” said Melissa Word, CPSD athletic director.

Special to The Canton News

Dameon Brown

Last season, the Tigers fell just one point short in the second round of the playoffs. Brown plans to build on that momentum by implementing his unique coaching style and putting a strong emphasis on strength and conditioning—particularly in the weight room.

Players say they are energized by the new structure and discipline Brown has already introduced to the program.

The Tigers will open their season on the road against longtime rival Velm Jackson High School on Aug. 29. The match-up is expected to draw significant local attention, as both teams look to set the tone early in the 2025 season.

“We’re excited for what’s ahead,” Word said. “Coach Brown’s leadership, work ethic, and connection to the community are already making a difference.”

Chancellor Cynthia Brewer honored for helping open doors to women in the legal profession

Special to The Canton News

Chancellor Cynthia L. Brewer of Madison was honored on July 10 for her exemplary work and service as a role model for women in the legal profession.

The Women in the Profession Section of the Mississippi Bar selected Judge Brewer as the 2025 recipient of the Susie Blue Buchanan Award. The award was presented on July 10 at the Price-Prather Luncheon during the Mississippi Bar Convention in Destin, Fla. The annual award honors an outstanding woman lawyer who has achieved professional excellence and has actively paved the way to success for other women lawyers.

Judge Brewer told the room full of lawyers and judges, “Thank you very much for this recognition and this honor. Each and every one of you have had an effect upon me....You have inspired me to be better than I thought that I could ever be.”

She recalled watching every episode of Perry Mason as a child. She wanted to be a criminal defense lawyer defending the innocent, as the character portrayed, but became a prosecutor in her early career. She was drawn to further public service as a judicial special master, County Court judge and Chancellor. She encouraged lawyers in the audience to seek out opportunities to serve as special masters, and as judges.

“I didn’t plan on being who stands before you today. I planned on being Perry Mason – with a skirt – and nice handbags,” she said, prompting laughter.

Referring to the list of 26 former Susie Blue Buchanan Award honorees on the awards luncheon program, Judge Brewer said, “I would like to say thank you to the people that you see on the back of your programs, especially the ones that I’ve had an opportunity to serve with.” She said of Lt. Gov. Evelyn Gandy, former Mississippi College School of Law Professor Carol West and former Mississippi Court of Appeals Judge Mary Libby Payne, “when they walked out with their law degree, they were not welcomed. We have [been] welcome, for the most part. I got called ‘little girl’ recently, but that’s another story. We are welcomed in the courtroom.... These ladies fought hard to improve the legal system, as well to improve females in the profession; and I say thank you to each and every one of them.”

She recalled an old picture of herself, Lt. Gov. Gandy and former Mississippi College School of Law Dean Patricia Bennett from a time when there were few women lawyers working in Hinds County. They made a difference.

“I say to each of you, stay. Make a difference. Think about what is our goal - and that is to improve or open the door for improvement, whatever way you can.”

She has served for many years as a visiting instructor at the National Judicial College in Reno.

“It has been my privilege and honor to serve as a judge, to inspire one another, to take newly elected and/or appointed judges from all over our nation and be a part of their professional lives.” A few of the Mississippi judges who she mentored were in the audience.

Former Mississippi Bar President Jennifer Ingram Johnson, the luncheon speaker, recalled appearing before Judge Brewer in Chancery Court as a young litigator, “and I was scared to death....And Judge Brewer welcomed me into her court, not only with her words, but just by her presence, her openness and her bright light.”

Johnson, of Hattiesburg, wore former Lt. Gov. Gandy’s pearls at the luncheon. The first woman statewide officeholder was her mentor and cherished friend. Gandy was the fifth recipient of the Susie Blue Buchanan Award. Johnson held up a copy of the pale pink luncheon awards program. “These are the trailblazers. These are the women who have paved this path for each and every one of us to be here and to be able to be leaders in our profession. Judge Brewer, you are very well suited to be added to the list of Susie Blue Buchanan Award winners today.”

Susie Blue Buchanan of Brandon became the first woman lawyer qualified to practice before the Mississippi Supreme Court in 1916. The Price-Prather Luncheon, now in its 27th year, is named for the state’s first woman judge, Washington County Court Judge Zelma Wells Price of Greenville, and the first Mississippi woman chancellor, Supreme Court Justice and Chief Justice, Lenore Loving Prather of Columbus. Chief Justice Prather received the Susie Blue Buchanan Award in 2005.

Judge Brewer is senior chancellor of the 11th Chancery Court, hearing cases in Madison and Leake counties. She became a chancellor in January 2007. She served twice as chair of the Conference of Chancery Court Judges, having been elected by her colleagues. She is a member of the Board of Governors of the Mississippi Judicial College. She served on the Commission on Judicial Performance as the alternate Chancery Court member. She previously served for four years as Madison County Court Judge, where her duties also included part of the docket for the Madison County Youth Court. She also previously served as a special master in Chancery Court, and as a Municipal, County and Youth Court prosecutor in Hinds County.

Judge Brewer earned her undergraduate degree from the University of South Alabama, and her Juris Doctor from Mississippi College School of Law. She previously served as an adjunct professor at Mississippi College School of Law.

The number of women in the legal profession has increased dramatically since Judge Brewer graduated from Mississippi College School of Law in 1985. Men outnumbered women graduates at MC Law by more than two to one in 1985; there were 67 male law school graduates and 30 female graduates that year at MC Law.

During the past five years, ratios of women to men entering Mississippi’s two law schools have fluctuated.

At the University of Mississippi School of Law, women outnumbered men among first-year law students in three of the past five years. The 2024 fall class of first-year law students included 91 women and 72 men. The 2021 entering class was 95 women and 86 men. The largest male class in the past five years was in 2022, with 98 men and 79 women first-year law students at the University of Mississippi School of Law.

At Mississippi College School of Law, first-year law students included 76 men and 64 women in fall 2024. Men outnumbered women first-year law students three of the past five years; 2021 enrollment was 82 women and 58 men starting law school, and 2023 first-year law students were evenly divided at 65 women and 65 men.

Of the 8,824 active members of the Mississippi Bar, 2,865 are women, according to data from January 2025, the most recent numbers available. Of those women lawyers, 2,191 practice in Mississippi and 674 practice out of state.

Families encouraged to review insurance as new school year resumes

Special to The Canton News

As students return to school or enter college this fall, Mississippians are encouraged to consider how their insurance and preparation needs may evolve.

“We’re in the midst of hurricane season now, so get kids involved in building their own emergency kit,” said Mississippi Insurance Commissioner Mike Chaney. “Make sure to include your child’s medication and supplies in your go-bag. For school-aged children, update school records and discuss emergency contact numbers with them. If your child is home alone after school hours, make sure they know how and when to dial 911, how to evacuate your home, and where to meet in case of an emergency.”

Families with teenage and college drivers are advised to review their current deductibles to ensure they are affordable in the event of a claim. On older vehicles, consider lowering or eliminating the physical damage deductible, unless required by the bank.

Parents and guardians can also control student auto premiums, in some cases, with accident forgiveness, and students may also qualify for a good student discount on auto insurance.

Special to The Canton News

For college students planning to live off-campus, Chaney advises that looking into renters’ insurance is crucial. If the student will share a rental property with one or more unrelated roommates, they should each buy their own individual renter’s policy. Whether living on or off-campus, documenting students’ valuables is important. Students are advised to create an inventory of expensive items like laptops, tablets and phones, which will make filing an insurance claim easier if these items are stolen, lost or damaged. Mississippians can download the NAIC Home Inventory app at content.naic.org/consumer/home-inventory.

Before a child heads off to college, parents and guardians should provide them with copies of all of their insurance cards for any medical needs, as well as discuss the distinction between in-network and out-of-network health providers and locate a nearby hospital or clinic close to campus, in case they require medical attention.

College students are particularly vulnerable to identity theft, due to the abundance of personal information and the casual way it is often handled. Identity theft insurance can cover the expenses of reclaiming financial identity, including the costs of copying documents, mailing paperwork, lost wages from taking time off work, and hiring legal assistance.

The moment the doors of the Barnes and Noble opened, I was there and waiting for The Enchanted Greenhouse by Sarah Best Durst. One of my favorite books of all time is her book The Spellshop, which I have written about previously. This new creation transports readers to a snowy island with an enchanted greenhouse and a main character who must figure out how to keep the plants alive. She's fueled by honey cake and new-found friends, which led me to want to bake my own cake. The cake is tender, subtly sweet, and perfect with a cup of tea — preferably while reading under a shady tree or in a greenhouse of your own.

ENCHANTED HONEY CAKE

Yields one 9-inch loaf or an 8x8-inch cake

INGREDIENTS

- 1 ½ cups all-purpose flour
1 tsp baking soda
½ tsp salt
1 ½ tsp ground cinnamon
½ tsp ground ginger
½ tsp ground nutmeg
½ cup neutral oil (like canola or sunflower)
¾ cup honey
½ cup brown sugar
2 large eggs
½ cup brewed black tea (cooled)
1 tsp vanilla extract

PREPARATION

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Grease a 9-inch loaf pan or 8x8-inch square pan and line with parchment paper.
2. In a medium bowl, whisk together the flour, baking soda, salt and spices.
3. In a large bowl, whisk together the oil, honey, brown sugar, eggs, tea and vanilla until smooth.
4. Gradually add the dry ingredients to the wet, stirring until just combined. Do not overmix.
5. Pour the batter into the prepared pan, and smooth the top.
6. Bake for 40–45 minutes, or until a toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean.
7. Let cool in the pan for 10 minutes, then transfer to a wire rack to cool completely.

U.S. history state test removed as high school graduation requirement

Special to The Canton News

The Mississippi State Board of Education (SBE) recently voted to eliminate the administration and graduation requirement of the U.S. history statewide assessment beginning in the 2025-26 school year. All students will still be required to take and pass the high school U.S. history course to qualify for graduation.

State assessments in algebra I, biology and English language arts will continue to be administered and remain a graduation requirement. The U.S. history assessment was the only one not required by state nor federal law. The SBE's actions included updating Board policies and accountability standards to reflect the elimination of the assessment.

"Though the U.S. history statewide assessment will be eliminated starting next school year, it's important to emphasize that students will still learn U.S. history and will be required to successfully complete the course to graduate," said Dr. Lance Evans, state superintendent of education. "Having fewer state tests required to graduate should be less taxing on educators, students and families alike."

The Commission on School Accreditation voted to propose eliminating the U.S. history assessment in April.

The SBE voted to accept the proposal for public comment during its regular monthly meeting in April. The proposal cleared the Administrative Procedures Act process with public comments. The public comment period was open from April 17, 2025, through 5 p.m. May 19, 2025.

CA graduate shines in Miss Mississippi Teen Volunteer Pageant

Special to The Canton News

Amelia Rose Cook, a recent graduate of Canton Academy and the daughter of Dr. Jay and Kristi Cook, recently competed in the Miss Mississippi Teen Volunteer pageant, marking a milestone in a journey that began with overcoming childhood stage fright.

Cook, who grew up in a musical family, said performing wasn't always easy.

"When I was a little girl, I had extreme stage fright," she said. "Growing up in a musical family, that obviously didn't mix."

Years of anxiety made singing in public a daunting task — until her brother, Jameson, stepped in.

"He learned that if I kept my eyes on him and if he kept his eyes on me, I could do it," she said. But singing solo was another hurdle.

Three years ago, Canton Academy was searching for someone to sing the national anthem at home games. Joey Butler, a local police officer who worked the press box at the school, encouraged Cook to volunteer. At first, Cook declined repeatedly.

"He finally convinced me, telling me I wouldn't be seen by people and that I could be alone in the press box," she said. "When it came time to singing it for the first time, I looked at Mr. Joey and asked him to stay. He stood behind me the entire time. My stage fright was gone."

Since then, Cook has performed the national anthem around 200 times before crowds of all sizes. Her growing confidence led her to the Miss Mississippi Teen Volunteer stage — where she faced her biggest audience yet.

"Yes, I was comfortable singing," she said. "But, then again, I had never sung anything other than worship music and the national anthem. I prayed for hours before I competed and walked off with nothing but joy. I cried for about five minutes backstage, just because of how proud I was of how far I've come."

Cook chose "Somewhere Over the Rainbow" for her performance.

"It reminds us that there's always hope, dreams really do come true, and there is ALWAYS somewhere over the rainbow," she said.

In addition to the talent portion, Cook reflected on the confidence she gained through the pageant's fitness phase — a segment she initially feared most.

"I wasn't scared anymore to show my body on stage, I was excited," Cook said. "But that didn't come from me alone: it came from the Volunteer System. They make you feel like you're one in a million every single second of every single day."

She also credited The Barre, a local fitness studio, and owner Erin Tate with helping her feel strong and supported.

"Not only do they get you fit, but they form personal relationships with you," she said. "Without these people, I wouldn't be half the person

I am today and would not have the confidence to walk on that stage."

Cook said the pageant experience was transformative and that she is filled with gratitude.

"Little Amelia would think people were CRAZY if they told her she can now sing anything anywhere at any time," she said.

Self introduces new initiatives for special programs in Canton School District

Special to The Canton News

Special to The Canton News

Dr. Pamela Self, executive director of special programs for the Canton Public School District, is preparing to roll out new initiatives across the three departments she oversees: Federal Programs, Child Nutrition and Exceptional Services.

In a recent meeting with her team, Self led strategic planning discussions focused on strengthening services and better addressing the varied needs of students and stakeholders in the upcoming school year, according to district officials.

The meeting included collaborative brainstorming aimed at improving the delivery and effectiveness of each department's offerings. Self emphasized the importance of tailoring programs to support both academic outcomes and overall student well-being.

"The goal is to design services that are responsive, inclusive and student-centered," Self said during the meeting, according to a statement from the district.

The three departments under Self's direction play key roles in the district: Federal Programs coordinates funding and compliance efforts; Child Nutrition ensures access to healthy meals; and Exceptional Services provides specialized instruction and support for students with disabilities.

Canton Public School District officials said more detailed plans will be released as the school year approaches.

At 90, Cantonian credits faith for long life and unshakable joy

Special to The Canton News

At 90 years old, Mother Mollie Ross is not just marking time — she’s declaring purpose. In a personal essay titled “I’m 90 — and I’m Glad to Be Alive!”, Ross reflects on the spiritual convictions and Biblical promises she says have sustained her across generations of family and faith.

“If you want to live long, you’ve got to obey God,” she writes, citing scriptures and personal revelations that form what she calls her “Covenant of Long Life, Obedience, and Blessing.” Her testimony, a mix of encouragement and exhortation, emphasizes God’s faithfulness and the power of speaking life through words.

Ross draws heavily from biblical examples, comparing her own journey to that of Sarah and Abraham.

“If you claim Abraham’s blessing, will you claim his years, too?” she recalls the Holy Spirit asking her. Her answer: a resounding yes.

Quoting Genesis, Psalms, and Proverbs, she asserts that long life is not only possible but promised to those who live by faith.

Her message also critiques modern church culture.

“Too many church folks today are confused,” Ross laments, urging unity and love over division. “This fight ain’t about jealousy, hate or church hurt. It’s about souls.”

The matriarch, who raised sons and daughters as a single mother, says her family is her daily testimony.

“My children, grandchildren, nieces, nephews and spiritual children remember me and visit me,” she writes. “I am here to share in and see the blessing and favor of God in their lives in my old age! I am not alone.”

In June 2025, loved ones from across the country gathered to celebrate her 90th birthday — a moment she describes as “joy unspeakable.” She credits her longevity not just to faith, but to the spoken word: “No matter what it looks like, speak life. Only speak life.”

Ross closes her reflection with a promise she intends to keep: “I shall live. I shall not die. I will finish the number of my days by God’s grace in strength, in peace, in health, and in the blessing and favor of the Lord.”

Her voice—firm, faithful, and filled with gratitude—resounds as both testimony and call to action for generations behind her: choose life, speak life and live it fully.

Change air filters. Air filters on some air conditioning units require monthly cleaning or replacing.

Set your thermostat to the highest comfortable temperature. The smaller the difference between the inside and outside temperatures, the lower your energy usage and bill will be.

Buy a programmable thermostat. A programmable thermostat can help manage costs, is controllable, and can help monitor usage.

Use fans to cool off. Ceiling fans, box fans and oscillating fans use very little electricity to circulate the air. Make sure ceiling fans are rotating in the right direction – counter-clockwise during summer – to push cooler air down into the room. Be sure to turn all fans off in unused rooms.

Close blinds, shades and curtains to keep the sun out and the cool air in. Also, close air conditioning vents in rooms that are not in use.

Seal cracks and holes around doors, windows and ductwork. Weather stripping and caulk will help keep the cold air in and the hot air out.
